The Family Process Institute

Vision Statement

Family Process Institute is an independent, multidisciplinary, transnational organization dedicated to developing and exchanging new theory, research, applied practice, and policy related to families and other systems. Grounded in a commitment to social justice, Family Process Institute aims to be an independent voice for scholarly work in the field and to shape future directions for research and practice.

Charge to the Board:

The Family Process Institute Board is charged to enact the mission statement, develop, and implement the strategic plan, and provide stewardship of the FPI resources.

As an independent, multidisciplinary, transnational organization, we assert equal rights and just treatment of all individuals, regardless of race, nationality, class, gender, sexual orientation, religion, language, age and ability. We dedicate ourselves to promoting a more inclusive and socially just world by developing and exchanging new theory, research, applied practice and policy related to diverse families and systems.

FPI seeks to be a global voice for scholarly work and to shape future directions for research and practice toward ameliorating suffering and enhancing the lives of individuals, couples and families through our journal, Family Process. Our partner, Wiley, publishes Family Process, distinguished as the first journal in the field of family therapy. Family Process has an international readership, and all abstracts are published in Spanish and Mandarin. Additionally, one article per issue is translated into both Spanish and Mandarin.
